A. C. Swango, candidate for congress, on the Populist ticket, pulled off after the Campton convention, and now claims that his friends took him off in the interest of his Jo.

Now, that the Tenth Congressional battle has been fought, and the smoke, dust and other volatile substance have cleared away, we can see victory perched on the banner of our Jo M. Kendall. Would it not be interesting to enquire who raised the most dust? Who did the shooting and how many times did they shoot. This we can not answer, but with the many good shots Tuesday, Hon. Rodney Hagyard and our young friend Sam Salyer broke the record. Now for the largest Democratic victory for Kendall and Beckner the Tenth has ever given.

A BEAUTIFUL TRIBUTE

Paid The Memory of Our Dead Congressman by James H. Swango.

Mr. Chairman: In support of the resolution adopted and in behalf of the people of Wolfe county, I rise to pay tribute, as one beginning the great journey of life, to our friend and fellow-citizen who has just ended it. While in the active discharge of his duties the hand of disease was laid upon his manly form, but day by day gliding of continued convalescence was brought to us, when, like the lightning's bolt from a cloudless sky, the brief, appalling message came, Marcus Lisle is dead. It smote our hearts like ice. We stood with bowed heads in the presence of great sorrow, and today we beg to consecrate this hour to the commemoration of him, who has just closed his eyes to the scenes of this world, to be opened amid the grand realities of a blest eternity. Loving hands have gently laid him away in his last and long resting place, loving eyes have looked for the last time through the mist of blinding tears upon his still, cold face, and the sound of the funeral dirge has died away. But how vain are these formalities to the commemorating hero who gave his life for his country's cause. Naught on earth will disturb the sleep that wrapped the mantle of death about his mouldering form.

Would that I could relate the story of his life. Born of poor, but honorable parentage, he rose rapidly in his profession and in the bright morning of manhood he gained the entire confidence of his fellow-men wherever he was known. His fathers pitched their tents in Kentucky's lonely forests, when it was indeed the dark and bloody ground. They wrested mountain fastnesses and blue-grass fields from savage foes, founded a religion that feared nothing save God and established a civilization that never closed a door to a stranger. Their sacred dust is mingled with our soil, made doubly sacred by their heart's best blood.

Such was the ancestry of our deceased and honorable servant.

Fellow-citizens, let us bow our heads in gratitude to God that such a patriot dwelt among us. Let our mountain sides resound with his praise. Let our glorious manhood join in full chorus and sing songs to him, who, like the man of Galilee, gave his life for his fellow-man. As a humble citizen of this commonwealth let me dedicate to his memory this epitaph, so beautifully inscribed by another, and let it also be enshrined in the hearts of every true American present, that it may stimulate his honesty, his integrity, his fidelity to the great principles of American citizenship.

In remembrance of Marcus C. Lisle: Born September 23, 1862, died July 7th, 1894. A learned and faithful lawyer, a peaceful and public spirited citizen, an incorruptible patriot, a sagacious statesman and over all God's noblest handiwork—an honest man, he was an ornament to the commonwealth and an honor to his race.

Peace be to his ashes and God bless his memory.

STATE SUSPENDS PAYMENT.

Treasury Doors Closed Friday—Deficit of More Than $600,000.

State Treasurer Hale last week, figuratively speaking, time locked the state's money chest for opening on October 1, when two-fifths of the total amount of the school money due the teachers, or over $850,000, will have to be paid. The collections of the revenue due on April 1, did not meet the expectations of the treasurer and he could see no way out of the difficulty of meeting the immediate demands on the treasurer and providing for the accumulation of the school money other than the entire suspension of the payment of all claims.

There is a deficit of more than $627,181 in the general expenditure fund, out of which all the current expenses of the government are paid, and an actual deficit in the treasury as a whole, when the sums credited to sinking and school funds are taken into account, of more than $277,577.

The next payment of revenue collections by the sheriff will be made on September 1, but for the reason that the last legislature extended the date of a final settlement with the sheriffs one month, it is feared the collections will not be as large as at the same period last year. The courts will then follow in September, and by their orders on the sheriffs for nine months in their hands to pay jurors, still further diminish the chances of accumulating a fund enough to meet the demands.

Whether the treasurer then will likely resume payments of all claims against the state on October 1 is a matter to be determined hereafter by the promptness of the taxpayers and the diligence of the sheriffs in collecting and reporting the taxes collected by them within the next two months.

MAGOFFIN COUNTY.

When Formed, Her Population, Wealth, Party Vote, Etc.

This county was formed in 1800, during the administration of Gov. Beriah Magoffin, for whom it was named. It was the one hundred and eighth county formed in the state, and was made up from parts of Morgan, Floyd, and Johnson. The soil along Licking river is moderately fertile. The hill land produces from fifteen to twenty-five bushels (three to five barrels) of corn to the acre. There is a great deal of poplar timber in the county, which is floated down Licking river to market, each winter and spring, in considerable quantities, whenever there is sufficient water. There is also a great deal of oak, beech, and other heavy hard-wood timber, none of which, however, is being shipped. There is, too, some walnut timber, but most of the choice walnut trees have been shipped. Some cannon coal is shipped from Magoffin, on poplar rafts, to the lower markets. Magoffin has, as yet, no railroads, but the "Kentucky Midland," from Frankfort, via Paris, Owingsville, West Liberty, Prestonsville, and Pikeville, to the state line, at the "Breaks of Sandy," will pass thro' the county via Salyersville, the county-seat, and it is believed will be completed at an early day, it being one of the numerous railways recently projected to aid in the development of the mineral and timber wealth of Eastern Kentucky. Already the forty-mile section from Frankfort to Paris is under contract, and in rapid process of construction, while the means to build the remaining sections, at least to a self-continuing point, are practically in hand, or, at any rate, in sight. Our county roads are not in good condition. We have no road laws, except the general law of the commonwealth, and the general character of our county roads is not so good as it might be, and certainly ought to be. There are no turnpike roads in the county. Licking river, heading in the extreme southwestern corner of the county, runs through the whole length of the county to the center of the northern boundary line, but is navigable only for rafts and flat-boats. There are no streams with available water-power for machinery. The character of the timber of Magoffin is that of the mountains generally. The oak, beech, and poplar predominate in quantity among the timber available for merchantable purposes. The principal agricultural products, of which a surplus is produced for market, are wheat and corn. The grasses best adapted to the soil of our county, and which are considered most useful and profitable, are timothy, red clover, herds' grass, and orchard grass, and are the four species of grasses mostly sown. Timothy is sown for hay, while herds' grass and orchard grass are sown for pasturing. Clover is sown for both pasture and hay, as well as for fertilizing. There has been no material change for the better in agricultural methods. The soil in the uplands is deteriorating in fertility because no attempt is made to revive it by the considerate sowing of grasses after an exhausting crop of corn or tobacco. There has been no immigration to Magoffin county in the last few years. There has been no marked increase in the population of the county in the last two years. Several steam saw-mills and grist-mills have recently been put in operation in the county, but we have no manufacturing establishments of any kind. One-half of the original forest of the county is still standing, but no provision has been made to check the waste of timber logs. They are frequently cut and then left in Licking river till they are too rotten for market. The farmers are showing more interest in securing better field and garden seeds than in former years.

D. D. SUBLETT.

Salyersville is the county-seat. The county has a population of 9,193. It is situated in the Tenth congressional, Seventh appellate, Twenty-third judicial, and Thirty-fourth senatorial districts. In the late congressional election it cast 654 votes for the Democratic candidate and 846 for the Republican.

Put Out in Just Ten Seconds.

Our citizens to the number of two or three hundred gathered on the burnt district here, on last Monday afternoon at two o'clock, to witness the exhibition made by the Cincinnati Tin and Japan Fire Extinguisher Co. The test was given under the personal supervision of Mr. Herman B. Wells, president of the company, of Cincinnati, and Mr. W. V. Snyder, the local agent, of Georgetown, Ohio, and was satisfactory in every respect, clearly demonstrating the Stemple Extinguisher to be one of the best methods yet devised or invented for the controlling of fire.

A structure of pine boards was built, and after being thoroughly saturated with coal-oil, a match was applied. The extinguisher was then turned on and the fire put out in about ten seconds. All who witnessed the test were thoroughly satisfied that the Stemple will do all and more than is claimed for it. The headquarters of the company are S. E. Cor. Sycamore and Canal Sts., Cincinnati.—Winchester (Ohio) Herald.

SPENCER COOPER, Hazel Green, Ky., Agent for Wolfe and Morgan counties.

A Fatal Inconspicuity.

At the meeting of labor organizations in Chicago Sunday night and Monday morning, resolutions were passed demanding that President Cleveland withdraw the United States troops from the city. If the labor organizations propose that this shall be a peaceable strike; if the men who are wrecking trains, burning cars and stoning railroad employees, are, as Dobs declares, not strikers, but toughs and bummers, why is this demand made by the labor organizations for the withdrawal of the troops whose sole object is to prevent these rowdies from depredation?

The federal troops are simply charged with the enforcement of the laws of the United States. No one who does not attempt to violate these laws will be interfered with in any way by the troops. If the men who are engineering this strike are opposed, as they claim, to all lawlessness, they would join with other classes of order-loving citizens in welcoming the blue-coats to Chicago, instead of excitedly calling for their withdrawal.

The truth is, the United States regulars have been, within the last few days, all that stood between Chicago and anarchy. The city police is a farce, and is the laughing-stock of those familiar with its conduct since the strike began. The state militia was not called out until late, and now that it has been called out it has acted so far in a manner scarcely more creditable than the police force. If it were not for the men under Gen. Miles, Chicago to-day would be at the mercy of the rioters.

The whole case, so far as the strikers and their sympathizers are concerned, is this: If the strikers are not breaking the laws of the land, if they are taking no part in the turbulent mobs, they will not be injured in the least by the bullets or bayonets of the federal troops. Furthermore, if they deprecate lawlessness, if as they allege they are in no wise responsible for the violence that has been done and is threatened, and if the real culprits are hoodlums disconnected with the strikers, acting either of their own volition or at the instigation of railroads, then the best friends of the strikers are the troops which can put a stop to such disturbances and quell the rioters.

The resolutions and the strikers' proclaimed desire for a law-obeying strike are, to say the least, fatally inconsistent.—Courier-Journal.

Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve months old child, suffering from infantile diarrhea, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and being sickly everything ran through it like water through a sieve. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving it Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used, a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared and its father and I believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow, M. D., Tamarac, Ill. For sale by John M. Rose.

The strike troubles in Chicago have about terminated.

For Babies as Well as Old Folks. I am glad to say that the Electropoise has cured me of rheumatism and illness, the result of typhoid fever, as well as catarrh. Have used it in the family from mother-in-law 73 years old down to the baby, used it on the baby while teething and it worked like a charm. For throat trouble we have never found anything to equal it. Several of my neighbors have them and are all well pleased. I can not say too much in praise of the Electropoise.

Mrs. F. M. CALLAHAN, Verona, Ky. Brain Congestion and Vertigo Cured With the Electropoise.

Sirs: Last July I was taken with vertigo, a congestion of the smaller blood vessels of the brain (hyperemia.) I could not study; everything I ate disagreed with me; at last I ate no solid food, but even soups and liquid food did not agree with me; I was induced to try the "Electropoise"; in one night's time it had relieved the brain congestion and vertigo. I began the next day to study; I ate from that time what I pleased, and since then I have been a comparatively well man.

REV. GEO. H. MEANS, Covington, Ky. Practical as Well as Theoretical. I am much pleased with my experience with the Electropoise, and believe it is in advance of any known remedy in theory for the restoration of the normal condition of the system, and its effects in the cure of disease has proved its efficacy practically and theoretically.

COMMISSIONER McDOWELL'S

Monthly Crop Report Ending July 10th.
The wheat harvest in Kentucky is over. The weather was very warm, and in most places dry, and the crop was put in the shock in fine condition. Threshing has commenced, and the prospect for a better crop than last year is very flattering. The yield promises to be as good, and the grain much superior. There are some counties reporting heavy damage from black rust. Correspondents from Bourbon and Montgomery counties report whole fields destroyed by this rust. But this report is not general. Most of the correspondents write that when the wheat was badly down from the effects of the snow, that it was generally badly rusted. Some complaint of straw falling, which is generally the work of the fly, and manifested about the time the wheat is ready to be harvested.

The government report for June makes an improvement of nearly two points in winter wheat, being 83.2 against 81.4 on May 1st.

It gives the percentage of the principal winter wheat growing states as follows: Ohio, 96; Michigan, 80; Indiana, 93; Illinois, 84; Missouri, 82; Kansas, 57; California, 60. It gives the acreage for the whole country at 95.2 per cent. Making in round numbers 33,000, acres.

The average condition of wheat in Kentucky on July 1st, as per reports of correspondents to this office, is 95 per cent.

Rye.—Rye is less susceptible to injury from cold than either wheat or barley, and was, consequently, less injured by the freeze; but, being more forward, and the head more matured, was more injured by the snow than wheat. In some places, it was so badly down that it was impossible to reach it with the harrower. The condition, on July 1st, was 88 per cent.

Barley.—I have been asked by farmers what I thought would likely be the price of barley. As supply and demand usually regulates the prices of nearly all things, I will answer that the supply will not be as large as last year. From the government report, on June 1, barley was $2.22 against $2.83, same date last year, and $2.1 in 1892. California, which produces more barley than any other state, has the very low percentage of 58. The crop in Kentucky was very badly damaged by the snow. The per cent. is placed at 82.

Spring Pastures.—Spring pastures in some counties look like they usually do in September in many places. Were they to catch fire, they would burn all over. First, the freeze, followed by the cold weather, then the snow, and afterward the drought, has retarded the growth, so that in many places there is very little pasture. The rains have not been general, some correspondents reporting no rain of any consequence since the snow. The average condition July 1st was 76 per cent.

Oats.—Have headed out very low, but conditions rather more favorable than last report. The average condition July 1st was 75 per cent.

Clover.—The impaired condition of clover is not confined to our state. There is a reduction of nearly five points in the average condition of all the states as compared with last year. There has been very little clover cut for hay, and consequently, very little seed will be saved this fall. The average condition July 1st was 72 per cent.

Timothy.—Timothy is being cut; the crop is very indifferent, nearly every field filled with cheat and white top. Many fields not worth cutting. The crop will be unusually short. The condition July 1st is 78 per cent.

Corn.—Everything looks promising at this date for a good corn crop. The farmer has certainly done his part. First, the ground was well prepared before planting, and next, the crop has been well cultivated; the color of the stalk is dark, and the growth looks vigorous. It has not, as yet, suffered for the want of rain, but in many places it is beginning to want it. The condition of the crop July 1st was 92 per cent.

Tobacco.—It is a very difficult matter at this stage of the tobacco crop, to get a correct report, as correspondents differ so wide. They differ as to acreage and as to the condition of the plant. The season has been fine for setting in some counties, plenty of rain, while in other counties the ground was not sufficiently wet, and the hot weather has killed the plants. The acreage and condition of the plant on July 1st, as reported by the correspondents to this office: acreage 80 per cent, condition 83 per cent.

Fruit.—To read the reports of correspondents to this office is sufficient to show how disastrous the season has been for all kinds of fruit. And then, after reading the reports of the other states, there is not very much encouragement that we will be able to eat very much fruit this year. The condition of the fruit crop in the eight states, which produce the commercial peach crop of the country, namely: New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, Georgia, Ohio, Michigan and California is a small fraction over 40 per cent.

The condition of apples is somewhat better than peaches, some few states reporting good crops. I will not undertake to give a per cent. of the crop in our state.

Stock.—The prices of cattle and hogs have kept up well. Mules and horses not so good. In the language of one of my correspondents: "The general condition of man and beast all over the state is good, for which we should ever be thankful."

HAZEL GREEN, KY.:
THURSDAY, : July 19, 1894.

G. T. CENTER

Defines His Position on the Turnpike Question.

I learn that it is being circulated all over this county that I am contemplating, if elected county judge, on having a tax levied on this county for the purpose of building a turnpike from Torrent to Hazel Green. This false statement has been gotten up and caused to be circulated by tricksters and figureheads that are not satisfied with the way things are going, and in order to excite and prejudice the minds of the oppressed tax payers of this county against me. While I am satisfied that there are not many who would believe that I would do anything that would be detrimental to the interest of the public, and while I am aware of the fact that a large number of our citizens are not posted as to the law on this subject, I think it proper and right that I should take this opportunity to explain it.

I here refer you to the acts of 1894, page 63, chapter 43, beginning at the second section, which reads as follows: "If as many as 25 per cent. of the qualified voters of any county shall sign and deliver to the fiscal court of such county a petition requesting the subject of taxation for the purpose mentioned in this act it SHALL be submitted to the voters of the county at the next regular county or state election to be held therein, thereupon the judge of said court SHALL order an election for this purpose, and if it be found that a majority of voters voting are in favor of levying said tax it SHALL be so ordered by said court," etc.

So you will see that the whole matter is in the hands of the tax payers. It begins with them and ends with them, and the county judge has nothing to do with it more than any other citizen, except to see that the peoples' will is carried out, and in case they want to take stock in the turnpike that it is properly done and that their interest is properly cared for. I wish to say in this connection that I am highly in favor of a turnpike from Torrent to Hazel Green, and all other improvements that are a benefit to our county. I am in favor of this turnpike being built by an incorporated company and paid for by the stockholders. And when made in this way it will be a great advantage to our country. It will make our farms worth more and will give us a better market for everything we have to sell. It will give employment for our working men and will enable us to get everything we have to buy cheaper. It would entice new life and energy in our citizens and tend to elevate and lift us up.

As to the propriety of the county taking stock in the turnpike in order to induce others to take stock, that is a matter altogether left to the voters. The law is so fixed that the county can not take more than $800 in stock to the mile of turnpike, and there can not be collected more than 10 cents on the $100 worth of taxable property in any one year for this purpose. The total amount of taxable property in our county is about $1,000,000, and we have about 1,800 tax payers, some of them non-residents. The highest average amount that could be collected from each tax payer for any one year for this purpose would be about 60 cents. I make these statements and explanations that the tax payers may be posted on this subject, and so they may intelligently see just what there is in it.

I have heard that it has been said that if I was elected county judge I would be in favor of paying the county officers high salaries. This is another false alarm. I am in favor of paying them a reasonable compensation for their services and no more. I wish to say to those that have been circulating these false reports that I have enough perplexities of my own without being made a camel to bear for others the loads which they had as well carry themselves. Men do not like to anchor to quiskand nor to build on stubble. The permanent is what the world should seek. I would suggest for your own good and satisfaction that you begin now to tell the truth and constantly do so until you have formed a habit of so doing. Then you can tell it easily. A liar can never be at ease in the company of those he has deceived. He will have to keep his memory constantly on the stretch, lest the stories he tells will not harmonize, as in this case.

G. T. CENTER.

Cumpton, Ky., July 17.

JOHN SPANIARD NICKELL.

His Autobiography of Adventure and Sport in Field and Forest.

I was born on the 10th day of October, 1832, on my father's farm, two miles south of Hazel Green, on Gillmore creek, near its confluence with Red river.

My father was among the early settlers of Eastern Kentucky, and in his early day there was a vast region of nearly uninhabited country extending from the settlements of Virginia to the more inhabited parts of the interior of this state.

This region of country of which I speak was nearly all embraced in what was then Floyd county, which covered nearly all the mountain lands of Eastern Kentucky, and out of which fifteen counties have since been formed.

This territory was then so sparsely populated that wild animals roamed at large, likely more free and untrammelled than in the earlier days of the primitive aboriginal inhabitants. Deer, bear and

Raccoons, opossums and mink were as abundant as squirrels and rabbits are at this time. Otters were not so common nor as easily caught. Furs and peltries of every kind were then in good demand at fair prices, so hunting was not only pleasant and enjoyable but profitable as well. We had experienced raccoon dogs which were as indispensable as any other dogs. The 'coon and 'possum was always caught after night, and afforded equal sport to any other class while it lasted. Neither of these animals were swift runners and would be forced to climb a tree after a short pursuit. The 'coon was an invincible fighter, and few dogs in a single-handed contest was their equal. I have caught as many as six 'coons out of the hollow of one tree. After the tree was cut down and we found where they were located we would cut in a hole and let one out at a time, and then the fun commenced. As soon as a coon was liberated the attack was at once made by the eager waiting dogs. Then a fearful wild turkeys was the principal game sought for by the hunters of those days, though wolves, panthers, wild cats, catamounts, otters, beavers and various other smaller animals were abundant. It was nothing more than natural that men in times like these should turn their attention to such inviting fields of amusement and profit as the mountain wilds of Eastern Kentucky then afforded, and my father, either from inclination or contracted habit, became one of the distinguished pioneer hunters of his day and time. It would be surprising and interesting, if I had space, to narrate the many thrilling and hairbreath escapes and adventures I have heard him relate that he has had with wounded deer and bear, and attacks from panthers, vicious catamounts and wild cats. But let it be remembered that like Nimrod, of old, he had distinguished himself as a famous hunter before his death, which occurred in 1858. I am among the youngest of thirteen children, and I can well remember when he would have as high as twelve frozen deer hung up in his smokehouse at one time, which he had killed during one snow storm, and there they would have to remain until the weather moderated and until they "thawed out" so they could be dressed.

During my boyhood days I was variously engaged in working on the farm, attending select school, hunting and trapping. My first smattering of an education was obtained at select schools from inferior teachers. Until the free school system was inaugurated I had acquired but little learning, and failing to take advantage of the free schools as I should have done, my education is now quite limited.

I had acquired, if not inherited, an insatiable thirst and fondness for all the sports of the chase with gun and dogs. Besides our regular trained deer dogs, we had a good train of swift fox hounds, which were equal if not superior to any of the highly prized hounds of today. Nothing has ever been more animating to me than to hear the music of this pack of hounds in full chase and to watch the sly, cunning maneuvers of the fox they were pursuing. All the instrumental music that was ever invented by the use of man could not produce in me such soul-cheering and hilarious emotions as I have experienced in one of these chases.

and bloody contest would take place, which was as interesting and exciting to us as gladiatorial combats between wild beasts were to the uncivilized nations of ancient times.

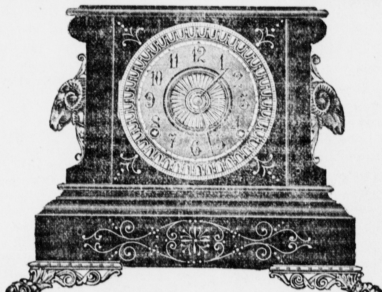

The mink and otter could seldom be caught except by trapping, as their habitation was about the large water courses. The mink was generally an easy prey, but the only means of capturing an otter would be to find out his "slide" or play ground. Then a skillful trapper would generally get one out of the number that attended their rendezvous.

During the time I was so industriously engaged hunting and trapping for small game I would occasionally go with my father on a deer hunt, but I proved a signal failure as a deer hunter in my first effort. I did not understand their nature nor habits nor how to take advantage of them. I once in a while killed one, which was more in good luck than good management, while my father would shoot them down as though he exercised some magic influence over them. As time passed on a great many changes were all the time taking place. The country from natural growth was fast filling up, beside large emigrations from Virginia and other southern states added still more largely to the then rapid increase of the native population, and it was seemingly but an incredibly short time until one passing through the country could see beautiful and well improved farms teeming with every variety of stock, with substantial farm houses, churches and school houses. All presenting every appearance of religion and civilization, where but a few years previous was the haunts of the deer, bear, wolf, panther, wild cat, raccoon and wild turkey. The smaller game that had so long engaged my attention was fast becoming extinct and trapping and hunting for it was no longer either pleasant or profitable. The deer, too, had left these parts but were to be found almost innumerable in droves and herds on the headwaters of Red river, in the Frozen mountains and along the large streams flowing into the North fork of the Kentucky river. So I determined to try my luck once more at deer hunting, and after making all the necessary arrangements for a few days of camp life, I started alone on my journey, my only retinue being my horse and faithful deer dog and gun. This was about the last days of April, 1852.

We wish this number our editorial space to G. T. Catter, candidate for county judge, that he may explain his position on the turnpike question, which you will find interesting.

Richmond DeBusk returned home Monday evening from Long Branch, having dismissed his school for three weeks on account of the prevalence of whooping cough in that neighborhood.

Do you want the best flour?
If you do, bring your wool and wheat to Maytown and you will get the best. Mill and machines running every day.

Mr. Hord, who has in thirteen acres of tobacco, reports it as doing finely and thinks there will be a big crop from his planting. He topped one piece on Monday, which is unusually early. White burley is the variety Mr. Hord grows, and he thinks all he raises will command 10 to 15 cents per pound.

The Hazel Green Fair Association has put its track in first-class condition, the stable is the best in the country, and Ray Moss, who trained here last year, has been engaged to superintend the training and stable. All who intend to have horses trained, should see Mr. Moss at once, and take advantage of his experience in the matter.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freeman House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by John M. Rose.

A Transgressor's Ways are Hard.

Wesley Osborn, who was arrested in this county by Deputy Sheriff John Cox about ten days ago, is having a hard time since Mr. Cox delivered him to the Lewis county authorities. A dispatch from Vanceburg on the 13th inst., says: "Late last night a telegram was received at the jail that a mob was on its way from Collegeville to take the murderer of young Hiram Adams, Wesley Osborn, from jail and hang him. The marshal and three deputies took Osborn from jail into the woods, and guarded him through the night. Osborn's courage failed him at the report, and he cried frantically to be saved. The people are determined in the neighborhood of the murder."

Nothing Strange.

Intelligent people, who realize the important part the blood holds in keeping the body in a normal condition, find nothing strange in the number of diseases that Hood's Sarsaparilla is able to cure. So many troubles result from impure blood that the best way to treat them is through the blood, and it is far better to use only harmless vegetable compounds than to dose to excess with quinine, calomel and other drugs. By treating the blood with Hood's Sarsaparilla, scrofula, salt rheum and what are commonly called "humors;" dyspepsia, catarrh, rheumatism, neuralgia, consumption and other troubles that originate in impurities of the blood or impaired circulation, can all be cured.

Elvin Wilson, of Missouri, son of Mrs. Louisa Wilson, and a brother of W. H. Wilson of Daysboro, and James Howard Wilson, of Mt. Sterling, arrived here Tuesday night, accompanied by his brother Jim Howard and cousin, Kiser Wilson, of Montgomery county. His visit was a surprise to his mother and his many friends here, who had not seen him in eighteen years, and his step father, John Wilson, said he felt very much like killing the fattest calf in honor of the occasion. Mr. Wilson will remain here for several days, perhaps weeks.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended and he knows it. For sale by John M. Rose.

Do not fail to read the advertisement of the State College of Kentucky, which appears in this issue. Several young men and young women throughout this mountain section have availed of the many advantages offered at this institution, and in consequence now hold positions of honor and profit.

A Grand Feature.

Of Hood's Sarsaparilla is that while it purifies the blood and sends it coursing through the veins full of richness and health, it also imparts new life and vigor to every function of the body. Hence the expression so often heard: "Hood's Sarsaparilla made a new person of me." It overcomes that tired feeling so common now.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, always reliable and beneficial.

In the athletic sports at Louisville last week J. Morton Swango, of Hazel Green, won the pole vaulting contest in eight feet eight inches and a half. But to show that that was not his best performance he vaulted nine feet easily.

Elder J. A. Howard, writing from West Liberty, under date of the 16th, says: Just closed a meeting at Spaw Creek with about thirty-five additions to christian unity; four baptised. I will preach at Flat Woods, Morgan county, next Sunday, it being the 4th in July.

We are having splendid weather cutting grass, and the farmers are taking advantage of it all along the line.

Miss Lizzie Tipton has joined the throng of Morgan county teachers, and will assume her duties on the 23d inst.

GUS. LUIGART, Proprietor.

Miss Carrie Amyx, who has been visiting at Campton for two weeks past, has returned home. She attended the closing exercises of the high school there. The entertainment was a success, and reflected much honor upon both teachers and pupils.

The strife for schools in Wolfe seems to be about ended, as many are reported to begin on the 23d inst. There appears to be a greater interest manifested in regard to the improvement of school buildings as well as to improved methods of education, but it is due in most part to the compulsory means resorted to in the late law.

The Duke of Red River Valley has upon his premises a pond that contains a living wonder—a trap that never fails to get its prey, as was exhibited the other day by its ready skill in seizing a crow by the foot and dragging it under water. As the crows alight to get a drink, they are instantly seized by the jaws of this trap, a nineteenth century prodigy. Any one desiring eyes, can have them at fifty cents a dozen.

Sufferers from Dyspepsia should read the following letter from Mrs. H. M. Peck, wife of Judge Peck, a Justice at Tracy, Cal., and a writer connected with the Associated Press:

"By a deep sense of gratitude for the great benefit I have received from the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla, I have been led to write the following statement for the benefit of sufferers who may be similarly afflicted. For 15 years I have been a great sufferer from dyspepsia and heart trouble.

Almost everything I ate would distress me. I tried different treatments and medicines, but failed to realize relief. Two years ago a friend prevailed upon me to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. The first bottle I used, which I bought at a drug store, did me so much good that I continued taking it. It did me so much good that I continued taking it. It did me so much good that I continued taking it. I have received such great benefit from it that

PEARCE AND JULIA

BY RICHARD MALCOLM JOHNSTON.

COPYRIGHT, 1892, BY J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY.

Omee was tonight such the will, and therefore didn't pass by it.

"I am aware of that, sister," he answered, with some retracting in tone.

She regarded him with much eagerness.

"If I could so arrange it, as I'm sure I could, wouldn't you take both of those places? knowing without a doubt," she quickly added, "what your father wishes?"

"I couldn't take any more than what it would be recognized universally that I was entitled to, sister."

"Not for your sake, dear sister, nor for anybody's, because such an act would subtract from my self-respect, by seeming equivalent to a compromise with brother, which I have resolved not to make."

"Oh, my Lord, what can be done in this case? Are you, then, going to do nothing to get at least some of your rights? I don't know what to say or what to do."

CHAPTER IX

One morning Cullen said:

"Hannah, it's been near three weeks since Sister Julia was here, and you haven't been in to see her yet. Don't you think it's time?"

He had got to suspect—and this was true—that she was waiting for him to suggest the visit.

"I've been thinking of it, Cullen," she answered, "but somehow I've kept putting it off. I'll go in a day or two, if you think I oughtn't to delay longer."

"Why not go this evening or to-morrow? I think I'd go this evening, and spend the night. Mingly and I can take care of Pearce for one night, and I can spare Jim from the plow better now than later."

"I'll rather not go this evening, but, as it's convenient, I'll go to-morrow morning. I won't stay all night unless I find that it would be a decided pleasure to sister, and she urges it."

The next morning, after laying out the servants' several duties, putting on some of her best things, she set out in the buggy, driven by a negro boy, on the way she speculated much on the happy life that must be led at Milledgeville, where she always had wished and hoped to live. She could account for her sister-in-law's avowed preference of the country, except by attributing it to her poor health, and she reflected with pain, in which she would not have admitted there was any anger, that her exaltation from the society for which she almost longed could have been prevented by her husband. Not that she loved him less, but for her sake, she argued, he ought to be willing to make some sacrifice of his own feelings. She was received with great cordiality by Mrs. Wiley Anderson, who, after finding that it would be no disappointment to Cullen, urged and easily prevailed upon her to remain until the morning. Some relief from the distress of this good woman had come from the apparent anxious desire of her husband to make a liberal allowance to Cullen, mainly, as he said, for the sake of Hannah and her child. As for giving a full half, this he declared he would not, as it would be admitting either incompetency or unjust partiality on his father's part, and that was serious in conducting the most of the old man's money affairs during the last ten years were not worthy of compensation. His wife, not misunderstanding him or his claims, yet was thankful for the hope imparted by his words that in time a settlement could be had, and she endeavored to trust that this might be made through Hannah. Admiring Cullen for his spirit of independence, she yet thought that perhaps it was well that Hannah took more practical views of present conditions. So she resolved to let her and Wiley have at least one interview alone with themselves. When he came home to dinner, he was very polite to Hannah, and showed satisfaction when his wife asked him to spend the night there. He asked civilly after Cullen and Pearce, and evinced gratification when told that both were well. After dinner he said:

"Julia, but for some matters of rather pressing concern, I would like to remain with you and Hannah. They will need more than a couple of hours. Then I'll come back, unless you and she are expecting to go out."

They had no such expectation. So he went to his office, and returned not long after the time he had set. He remarked that a great deal of prudence and patience and many other things had to be studied and practised by a business man; no doubt about that. His wife smiled sadly, seeing the impression upon Hannah of his great solemn words. Not long after his return she said:

"Hannah, I'm going out for awhile to see a poor woman who has been doing some little work for me. You and Mr. Anderson can entertain each other till I get back, can't you? I won't be long."

"Oh, yes, sister," said Hannah, with some rural embarrassment, "she had always regretted her want of the ease she noted in Milledgeville women."

"Oh, yes," Wiley said, with polite reassurance: "Hannah and I can manage somehow till you get back, Julia. I'm not much of a talker; but Hannah is first rate at that. I'll let her entertain me while you're gone."

"Sister, Brother Wiley," was all Hannah could think to say.

After his wife had gone, he proposed to walk into the garden and inspect an arbor which had been made of his devising. Hannah, not knowing exactly how to treat such an invitation, acceded, and repairing thither they sat down upon one of the rude benches within. Then Anderson said:

"Hannah, I hope you won't think too much of Julia's rudeness in leaving the house when a visitor is in. The poor thing is not in good health, as you know, and sometimes I'm afraid she isn't in her perfect right mind."

"Why, Brother Wiley, Sister Julia did entirely right in treating me as she did. I'll be one of the family."

"She ought to, knowing how I've always loved you, Hannah."

"Thank you, Brother Wiley; I have always loved you as a dear brother."

She bit her lips when she said it.

"As a brother," he echoed with slight bitterness of emphasis. "Curious how things go in this world. Here's me, for instance. I know how to make money, and I make it. I know how to pull strings, and money comes to me from other people, sometimes unexpected. But there are things I value more than money, and court, have them. People don't believe that about me, but it's so."

He looked submissively and at the thought of having been misunderstood by the world.

"Why, brother—"

"Please don't call me brother, Hannah."

She started, and looked, as if with some apprehension, through the interstices of the encompassing vines.

"Listen while I explain to you," he said, in deliberate, low utterances, yet not without appearance of authority to command attention. "Hannah, without having any idea of what an unhappy man I am, you were about to use words of congratulation, beginning with calling me your brother. I was saying just now how curiously things in this world went. Now, there is my brother Cullen, a man of excellent parts, a handsome man, who frequently says to myself, ought to be the happiest man upon the whole face of the earth married as he is; yet he neither makes money nor tries to make it beyond a mere common country support, apparently without any ambition to bring his family into town and give them the benefit of a society as good as can be seen anywhere in the whole state of Georgia. I don't say I blame Cullen for having that sort of preference, but it seems curious to me that I look at you and think how you would shine if amien would give you the opportunity. And, Hannah, unless he drives me off entirely from here, I mean to make it so that, if he wants no, he can make his family participant in all this town affords. If not, I'll do whatever I can for you, in spite of him. He understands his wife no more than he understands his brother."

Then he took her feebly-resisting hand, and said:

"Hannah dear, while father is in some sort of fret with Cullen, he made his will in which he cut him off from an equal share in his estate. He was vexed with Cullen because of his want of such ambition as he thought his children ought to have. I said little about it, believing that when he came to see what sort of woman Cullen had married he would either destroy it or make proper alterations of it. He seemed in time to appreciate you like I did. Yet after his death I found, among papers which he had left with me, that will, which, as an honorable man, I was bound to present in the court. My intention has been to make an allowance beyond the provisions of that paper, far beyond that. I don't want to let her and Wiley have as much as I like, but never treated me like a brother, and always went counter to my advice, but for the sake of his child, and—for the sake of you, Hannah, whom I love, and whom I have loved, better than all the rest in the whole world."
